DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-29 are cancelled.

Claims 30-53 are allowed.

REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The present invention pertains to a data transmission method and apparatus including a specialized method of retransmitting error packets. The claimed invention (claim 30 as representative) recites features such as "a first step of performing transmission of the packets each having a sequence number;

a second step of receiving a retransmission request for a retransmission packet corresponding to any of the packets in which a transmission error has occurred; and a third step of performing transmission of the retransmission packet having a first sequence number indicating a reproduction order and a second sequence number indicating a transmission order of the retransmission packet, on the basis of the retransmission request."

The prior arts of record (Ejzak, U. S. Patent No. 6,389,066 as an example) teach a system and method in which data is transmitted and if any previously transmitted RLP frames were transmitted in error and need to be retransmitted, the transmit RLP circuit then creates a queue of new RLP frames which are passed to the RLP frame and channel decision unit circuit for subsequent transmission. Additionally, the transmit RLP circuit also creates a queue of RLP frames for retransmission which are passed to the RLP frame and channel decision unit circuit, separately from the queue of the new RLP frames, for subsequent retransmission. Each RLP data frame includes, as a minimum, layer 2 data from the buffer circuit, a sequence number uniquely identify the relative positioning of the data for reproduction in sequence at the receiver, and a cyclic redundancy code (CRC) to identify any frames in error. Additionally, each RLP frame has a fixed length determined by the adaptive channel coder and modulator. The prior arts however do not teach a retransmission packet having a first sequence number indicating a reproduction order and a second sequence number indicating a transmission order of the retransmission packet, on the basis of the retransmission request. As such, modification of the prior art of record can only be motivated by hindsight reasoning, or by changing the intended use and function of the prior art themselves. As such, it is not clear that one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention would have made the necessary modifications to the prior arts of record to encompass the limitations set forth in the present application. Moreover, none of the prior arts of record, taken either alone or in combination, anticipate nor render obvious the claimed inventions. Hence, claims 30-53 are allowable over the prior arts of record.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

U. S. Patent No. 6,674,477      Yamaguchi et al.

This patent teaches a data processing method comprising the steps of: successively inputting classified time-series data and its priority information; and (1) when the information for classified time-series data is damaged, performing retransmission request processing in order to request retransmission of damaged data and (2) when classified time-series data is continuously or frequently lost, applying retransmission request processing only to high-priority data.

U. S. Patent No. 6,141,324      Abbott et al.

This patent teaches receiving feedback from the communication system indicating the amount of in-transit data present therein resulting from the transmitting of data, wherein the act of receiving feedback includes at least one of receiving acknowledgment and timing tokens appended to data packets via a telephone line, receiving acknowledgment and timing tokens identified by escape characters in a contiguous data stream via a telephone line, and receiving acknowledgment messages in accordance with a forward error correction and retransmission scheme via an internet-based TCP connection.
